

Call for Applications:
Join the Faculty of the Fine Arts at the British School at Rome!

Are you passionate about contemporary art, committed to creative leadership, and keen to support emerging talent? The British School at Rome (BSR) is seeking new members to join its Faculty of the Fine Arts (FFA), starting in September 2025.

We're looking for artists and arts professionals who bring fresh perspectives and deep expertise in fine art practice, research, leadership, or arts funding and fundraising. We especially welcome applicants from underrepresented backgrounds and those based outside London. BSR alumni whose residency ended five or more years ago are welcome to apply.

Why join the FFA?

As a Faculty member, you'll play a vital role in shaping the artistic direction of the BSR. You'll support the selection of award-holders, advise on policy and programming, and champion the value of cross-disciplinary, international creative research. You'll also help promote and strengthen the BSR's mission to be an inclusive, dynamic home for art and ideas in Rome.

Please note that this is an honorary, non-remunerated role.

We're looking for individuals who:

- Are practicing artists, curators, writers, or professionals in the museum and gallery sector
- Have experience in or commitment to contemporary art practices and interdisciplinary research
- Bring insight into arts funding and fundraising
- Are enthusiastic about mentoring and supporting early-career artists
- Can dedicate time to the FFA's activities and meetings (see below)

Responsibilities include:

- Participating in the selection of BSR award-holders (1–2 panels per year, approx. 2–3 full days of work each)
- Attending two Faculty meetings annually (March and November; normally online)
- Visiting the BSR in Rome at least once during your five-year term (travel and accommodation covered) to engage with artists and offer studio visits
- Promoting the BSR's work within your networks
- Engaging in discussions and committees to shape the future of the BSR

Join us in fostering a vibrant, inclusive community of artists and thinkers in Rome!
